ABOUT THE PROGRAM

The Master's program of Contemporary China Studies (MCCS) at Silk Road School (SRS), Renmin University of China (RUC) is a key measure by RUC to actively support the Belt and Road Initiative (BRI) in an educational context. Based on RUC's international and domestic impact, unique think-tank resources, outstanding faculty, and advanced teaching and learning facilities, SRS was founded in 2018. SRS is devoted to cultivating future scholars and leaders from BRI countries and other parts of the world who are passionate about China, and interested in China's history, cultures, governance and development.

RUC is a comprehensive research-oriented university focusing on humanities and social sciences. With our rich experience in teaching and research and extensive international academic exchange ties, MCCS provides international students opportunities to know China and Chinese society through teaching, field study, and various academic activities and expects to prepare competent graduates contributing to world peace and development.
